No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it! ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save.

FRIDAY MORNING, FEB. 26, 1864.

There are many, professing to be Union men, who seem to be afraid to say exactly what they think. They will declare privately that they have not the slightest regard for, or sympathy with slavery, and would even be glad if it were forever exterminated from the land. But they object very strenuously to any political action which looks like an endorsement of the emancipation policy of the Administration, or which will commit the Union party to anything more than, in general terms, the support of the Government. They are afraid that telling the truth, somehow may displease tender-footed men who do not love their country well enough to approve of anything that looks like abolition, and as it is important to keep the votes of such, it will hardly answer as a matter of policy to say or do anything which may disturb their delicate sensibilities. We confess that we have no respect for that sort of strategy. It is deceptive and debilitating. It does not claim for the party the high and manly position which it maintains elsewhere, and it is calculated and likely to weaken the zeal and activity of those who are its bone and sinew. They are contending for the success not merely of a party, but of great principles upon which must rest all future peace, prosperity and national integrity. They have seen slavery, in the hands of the Democratic leaders, made a cause and a weapon of war upon the country and the Constitution, and they are determined, as it struck the first blow, that it shall not outlive the conflict which it instigated. It is a nuisance and must be abated; it is an outlaw by its own folly, and must die. The costly and precious blood which it has shed—the millions on millions of treasure which it has wasted, rise up in righteous judgment against it, and demand its immediate, its utter annihilation. So all patriotic men believe, and thus believing, why should they fear or hesitate so to declare boldly and on all occasions? Let the watchword be "death to slavery, for it has sought destruction to the Republic," and every loyal man will heartily respond, and will strive with all his might to win a sure and everlasting victory over the rebellion and its infamous cause, and if any timid and time-serving politician dares not to meet the issue, which the war and the mad tyranny of the South have forced upon the nation, let him go and like a coward hide behind the backs of better and more heroic patriots, or if he will, let him join again the ranks of those who only serve the country when it serves them, by giving them office. The men for the times are actuated by nobler and more lofty motives. They want peace, they want it so assured and strengthened by the abolition of the cause of the war, that when once made it shall last forever, and the land never again be scourged because of slavery. Let then the honest truth be spoken—whether men will hear or will forbear." Let things be called by their right names, and freedom and truth shall gloriously conquer.

FIRE IN THE REAR.—Letters have been received in this city from Washington, which explains in part the cause of the proposed ...tary changes in this District. One of them from a gentleman whom we know to be loyal and reliable, says that Mr. McGilvra, the present United States Attorney, of Washington Territory, conceives that he is worthy of a high military or civil station "and made an effort to have Judge Oliphant removed, and himself appointed in his place; failing in that he tried to have Gen. Alvord ordered East and himself appointed Brigadier General to command this District. These are facts which can be proved if McGilvra denies it." Certainly this was a novel way of promoting the interests of those for whom he professed so much friendship, and perhaps it may satisfy the minds of our neighbors across the Columbia that in trusting Mr. M. they sold themselves at a cheap rate. Would it not have been something extraordinary if the young gentleman had happened by accident or force of brass to supplant either the patriotic and accomplished General of the learned Judge?

DEMOCRATIC UNION.—The Secession papers in this State are very pathetic in their appeals to those, who used to be Democrats, begging them to cast aside all minor differences and come together as opponents of the Government, for the purpose of "beating the Abolitionists," as they call all who support the Administration in its efforts to crush the rebellion. What a patriotic object! Americans wanted for a combination to aid rebels in destroying the Union! Who will volunteer? None save traitors, for no man of sense can doubt, that all opposition to the Government is only giving strength and encouragement to the rebellion. If a man loves his country, he will prove it, by assisting its constituted authorities to maintain its power. If he does not love it, of course he will act with the Democratic party, for its enemies are there and no where else.

Union Meeting in Lafayette.

LAFAYETTE, Feb. 23, 1864.

According to notice the friends of our holy Union cause gathered at the Court-House in Lafayette. The house was crowded, including a goodly number of ladies. The Dayton Brass Band was in attendance and also Mr. Spence's choir of vocal musicians.

At 12 M. the house was called to order. Gen. Palmer was elected President, Dr. H. V. Johnson, Vice President, and B. F. Giltner, Secretary.

The meeting was then opened by a truly lively and affecting invocation by Rev. Mr. Geo. B. Chandler.

The band then gave Hail Columbia.

A committee on resolutions was appointed by the President, consisting of Messrs. G. W. Lawson, G. W. Stewart, S. C. Adams, Dr. I. W. Watts, and A. G. Hoss, who presently reported the following resolutions which were read and passed unanimously:

Resolved, That in the acts of our President and Congress, and in the victories of our arms on land and sea we recognize the approval of Almighty God of the justice of our cause, and we acknowledge ourselves solemnly convicted by His judgments recorded in the doctrines of Nations, that American only, propitiate and perpetuate divine favor by being true to her mission—the extension of the priceless boon of liberty to all mankind.

Resolved, That we heartily endorse the present National Administration—that we are in favor of the most rigorous prosecution of the war, without regard to cost or sacrifice—"that we have no sympathy with any person or party that advocates peace on any terms other than unconditional submission to the majesty and power of the Union"—that every citizen owes paramount allegiance to the United States, and only secondary and subsidiary allegiance to the State of his nativity, and that upon no other doctrine can the principles of our government and constitution be maintained.

Resolved, That the emancipation proclamation of the President, aside from its intrinsic justice, was justified by military laws, and demanded by the gigantic necessities of the rebellion—that it was an act of wisdom, discretion and great strategic ability to strike from the exchequer of a relentless and detorlished enemy, three millions of slaves, having a serviceable property relation of one thousand millions of dollars, which gave them a labor use at home and a money credit abroad, and our country will forever sustain and perpetuate the act as the most decisive, yet bloodless victory of the war, and we believe our greatest hero ought to be our next President.

Resolved, That we are gratified with the late reconstruction and amnesty propositions of the President, and look upon them as being best calculated to restore the governmental relations of the revolted States with the general government, while the clemency extended to the rebels in arms is a magnificent and unrivalled tribute to the peace and mercy of a great and good government, that lives and means to live, in the pride and affections of its people.

Resolved, That while the Gray Eagle of the North was fighting the black Buzzard of Slavery in the South, it was cowardly and utterly unworthy of the British Lion to go to sea on the Sumter and prey on our merchantmen; all the while professing to show his teeth, or in any manner to give satisfaction to our irate shade send after him: therefore, his conduct is that of a sheep-killing dog, and his government must be responsible for his sneaking depredations—piracy outrageous in a christian nation and infamous in a warlike people.

Resolved, That the French invasion of Mexico, after the United States had offered to pay her subject the eight millions of dollars due from Mexican citizens, we regard as an evidence of unholy ambition, and an unpermissible intrusion of the "Island Tyranny," in the affairs of our continent; and that in France builds iron-clads for an insurgent people, burning no sea marine, nor any port of their own open to peace commerce or shipping, the act is piratical, a violation of the laws of nations, and neither neutrality for which satisfaction must hereafter be made, or the Fleur de Lis be swept from the seas, as was swept the Corsairs of Tripoli and Algiers.

Resolved, That the Democratic party (admitting it to be in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war) by its affiliation with actual secessionists and rebel sympathizers, has lost the confidence of the nation, and ought not to ask, and cannot expect to be entrusted with the government and the winding up of the war; because its councils would be distracted, and its ends perverted by the demands of its rebel allies and associates for favors and concessions, which, if granted would fail to settle with the final decisions of war, the great issues which have been appealed to the guns of battle—and no permanent peace would be secured, failing which, the blood and treasure of the nation will have been poured out in vain.

Resolved, That spirit of all subterfuge, the creed of the Democratic party of the North is slavery, and the offices to sustain it; while the corner stone of the Union party is liberty, and the management of the government to maintain it! That we believe slavery, and the political power given by it, are no longer compatible with freedom and the institutions of freemen, and that in the irrepressible struggle of each for existence on this continent, slavery is destroying itself, and must go back into the night of barbarism whence it originated.

Resolved, That while from our geographical position, we may not be called on to enter the field of active war, yet we owe it to our brothers in arms in the East to give freely of our substance; to elect Union and unconditional Union men to the nation's councils; to suppress disloyalty and to encourage loyalty at home; to carry our political flag as far into the ranks of our countless enemies at the ballot box as our armies have borne the nation's banner into the heart of the rebel Confederacy, and like them to persevere until not a foe remains to dispute the supremacy of justice and order, law and Government. And may God maintain the right!

Resolved, That the Union papers of Oregon are requested to publish these resolutions and the proceedings of this meeting.

Music by the choir—Rally round the Flag Boys.

Rev. T. H. Pearne was then introduced, who made one of his most effective efforts for one hour—that being the time limited to each speaker.

Music by the Band—Red, White and Blue.

Judge Williams then took the stand, and copperheads ought to remember from him who commenced the war—the rebels or Abraham Lincoln.

Song by the Choir—The Star Spangled Banner.

Judge Boise thereupon addressed the vast and patient audience in a truly able and searching review of our National difficulties, its causes and its cure.

Music by the Band—Yankee Doodle.

Several other pieces of Music were performed and a couple of solo-patriotic songs were sung by Mr. Spencer in his best style, What's the Matter, and the copperhead account of the Death of Uncle Sam, both ludicrous and satirical and which brought down the house in storms of applause.

The speakers ought to be highly gratified by their efforts, which were all well applauded.

Messrs. W. Carey Johnson and Wm. Lair Hill were present and were assigned places to speak, but apologetically declined on account of the lateness of the hour. The day will be ever remembered as the most stirring, cheering and glorious that ever loomed upon our town and county.

B. F. GILTNER, Secretary.

ANOTHER CHAPMAN PIRATE DISCHARGED.—Judge Hoffman, of the United States District Court in San Francisco, decided last week that Ridgley Greathouse is entitled to freedom under the President's amnesty proclamation, by taking the oath of allegiance, and Harpending is, of course, entitled to the same privilege. Judge Hoffman expressed great reluctance at being obliged to give the decision.

BURNED TO DEATH!—Mrs. Connor, wife of the notorious Connor who was shot at Centerville, Boise, last summer, came to her death by burning, in a house at Pierce City on New Years' day. It was supposed that she had got drunk as usual, and accidentally set her bed clothes on fire. The house was entirely consumed. Deceased was formerly a resident of this city, then the wife of Edward Mecuy; at that time proprietor of the Western Hotel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14th.—A Washington dispatch announces that Capt. Bellin E. Woodworth has been relieved from the Narragansett and assigned to the command of the Monitor Canonicus.

White Commander Quinchain, of the Russian corvette Gigantic, was returning from the Ocean House, last evening, with a lady companion in a buggy, the vehicle was overturned on the first hill west from the Mission-Dolores. He sustained a fracture of the skull at the right temple, and the upper portion of the face was smashed in. It is thought he cannot live. The lady escaped serious injury. The Commander was expecting to be relieved with permission to return home in a few days.

Eugenie Voyanne, a young girl employed in the Fellis Melodeon, committed suicide on the 3d. She had been deserted by a man named Bosha.

Sub-Treasurer Cheeseman sent $150,000 more gold east by the steamer of the 12th, making $350,000 this year.

A Virginia Family Scene.

—While on our recent march the Second Corps and the Third Division of the Sixth Corps halted on Sunday, the 20th, thirteen miles from Orange Court House for the night, and I improved the opportunity to visit a log house, which was in full range of the enemy's guns, and over which lonely roof the solid shot hummed and the hissing shell screeched as they tore through the air on their errands of death. Upon knocking at the door of the gloomy habitation, which had a deserted appearance, it was met by a trembling youth of fifteen years, who stood motionless and pale as a ghost at the side of a terrified and weeping group of children. Entering the door I found a clean and tidy, but cheerless and poverty-stricken apartment, whose furniture consisted of an ancient loom, draped in cobwebs and covered with dust, a speaking picture of the sad changes of war, whose harsh tones had shrieked the ruin of the implements of peace and hold the plowshare into the sharp sword of death. An old bedstead, covered with clean comforters, a silent clock which refused to tick, an old looking-glass, half a dozen antique chairs, whose venerable forms carried one back to the time of the Pilgrim Fathers, with a barrel and a few primitive cooking utensils, completed the stock of earthly goods within this cheerless dwelling. One small window of four panes of glass emitted a feeble gloomy light, too weak to penetrate to all the corners of the room. The rough hewn logs were cemented with clay, or, more properly speaking, virginia mud, and the interior was whitewashed.

I found ten children running down the circle of eight orphans, two boys and six girls ranging in age from five to twenty-two years. The three younger were barefooted, and the eldest girl informed me that they had never worn any shoes. After I had quieted their fears as much as possible, Brigadier General W. F. Terry, commanding Third Division Sixth Corps, came in, and, upon beholding their destitute condition, he very humanely ordered Captain Darla, his efficient Provost Marshal, to place a strong guard around the house, and to allow no mail or any portion of the property to be disturbed. He also ordered Detailed seven men to chop a quantity of wood for the use of the family and our soldiers volunteered to do it freely when they learned of the deplorable situation of the family. While sitting there before the log fire which burned brightly on the open hearth, casting its weird-like shadows on the wall, we ventured to ask some questions, as usual with Yankees, whose inquisitive bulge is acknowledged to be considerably larger than the rest of the human family.

Not a book or newspaper could be seen, and upon inquiry we learned that not one of the family could read or write. We asked them how they managed to occupy their time, and were told in spinning and sewing. Not one of the family knew what we meant by the American flag, and not until I pulled from my coat pocket a small illuminated almanac, adorned with the Stars and Stripes, had they ever beheld the emblem of their country. The eldest boy, of fifteen, who performed all the hard labor of the small farm of thirty acres, had never seen a locomotive, and did not know what a lemon was. When asked if they had ever heard of a God, they replied they had—but none could tell where He was. Meat they had not tasted of of any kind for two months. Tea, coffee, butter, rice, sugar and molasses they had not tasted for over two year. George Washington they never heard of until we informed them. As the family huddled together in one corner of the room, gazing at the strange and warlike group around them, who to the artillery hoarsely boomed, and the musketry along our picket lines rattled, it was a sad, sad picture. Pale Poverty, with her dismal shades tinted the stern heart present with compassion and deep pity. More than one "Yankee" was glistened with the moisture of the briny tear, which unnoticed, stole slowly down from the windows of the soul. A comb-like silence prevailed for a moment or two, broken only by the sobs of the terrified children and the peal of the enemy's cannon.

The mother had been conscripted into the rebel army, where disease overtook him and laid him in his grave. The next morning at daylight we broke camp and resumed our march. Before leaving, General Torr and Captain Tilley, Quartermaster of his division, gave the family $100 in payment for a few split rails which our troops had burned.

GEN. GANTT'S ADVICE TO COPPERHEADS.—General Gantt, of Arkansas, addressed a large Union meeting at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, January 15th. In the course of his speech he gave the following good counsel to grumblers and Copperheads:

I hear men in the North denounce the Secessionists with apparent bitterness, and they say exterminate them but save the negro. They might as well say of a man bitten by a mad dog, kill the dog, but let the man go with the dog! (Laughter.) We in Arkansas are going to kill the dog and try to save the man. Kentuckians say there are two parties, destructives and conservatives. Be believed the destructives were the secessionists and their unwilling allies, but that he could call the conservatives to his support. With Arkansas are going to vote, for whoever you may nominate as an unconditional Union candidate for President. (Cheers.) I say to those conservatives that the only way you can stay the destructives is to stand as near to the South, yield to the Government, then we will withdraw our armies. But no! the conservatives have not the time nor the mood, they say. They see their true and gallant neighbors shedding their blood in defence of our rights, while you stay at home to watch the Constitution. If you can't fight, if you can't join either side, for Heaven's sake keep quiet and say nothing; for when the rebellion is conquered and the soldiers come home, they can see for themselves whether the Constitution is protected and punish the desecrators. (Cheers.) By your present conduct, in murmuring and muttering, you preach peace propositions and encourage the insurrectionists. I am a farmer myself, I expect nothing from the Government, but I tell you truly that the rebellion is looking anxiously upon the course of the so-called conservatives, and would like to spin them on for they expect it will bring delay and finally victory to them. I want my suffering people relieved, but I want the old Government to embrace the whole territory, as of old. (Cheers.) My friends in the South have denounced me because I am telling the truth about them; but I tell you I never met more unfortunate Secessionists than those conservatives of the North. Would the South abuse me if I was not telling the truth about them? I have found among the rebels and I know that your conservatism is leading the South. I appeal to you. Look to party and go for your country; unconditional Union men to the front and elect him. That is what the Union men of the South want. The rebels are waiting for the inauguration of a new President, and they want you conservatives to succeed. Then will be the time for success. The hardest blow ever struck the rebellion was the emancipation proclamation enforced by Union bayonets. As to compromise, he said, would it not be wise for the Secretaries, after Congress adjourns, to call back to the President and say: "We are willing to join you again?" The question would be: "Why did you go out?" "Why, to protect the negro." "What have you come back for?" "Why, to protect the negro." (Laughter.) That is all stuff. Jeff. Davis and the leaders won't do that. The people are willing to return. The bitterest Secession ladies daily marry laundering Union soldiers. I was afraid my wife would leave me when I determined to support the Union, but when I told her, she said it was the noblest act I had ever done.

GENERAL PAINE AT GALLATIN, TENNESSEE.—A correspondent of the Nashville Union, writing from Gallatin, Tennessee, describes the occurrences for a half hour at the office of General E. A. Paine, commanding post, thus:

Some good rebel or sympathizer had lost a mule or so a negro, and failed to get him back or a permit for him. Some forlorn woman who had to eat permission to take the oath, that she might get a permit from the Board of Trade to buy some shoes and stockings for her little ones; every contraband seems bent to tell tales on the white folks. The old general (who grants half the cases daily is about like the justice of the peace Shades of your city; and just like the recorder he has subpoenaed either managed to find out the private history of some one or other, supposes before this. He has got at least two twenty-five dollar fines for nothing. But there is about as graphic a picture as I can leave. Said the General: "Well, A., what can I do for you this morning." "Why, General, two of my negroes have left me, and I cannot, you testify them?" "No sir, I cannot, and would not if I could. I refer you to the President of the United States or to the Colonel of the regiment where your property is now playing soldier." "But, General" "No matter, that is the man and he." "But, General" "Well Mrs. B., what can I do for you?"

Mrs. B. (in quite an animated tone)—General, I am ready to take the oath now.

Gen.—Ah, indeed! Is it possible! Why, madam, we have been begging you to do it for months. But Heaven be praised, you can now do it.

Mrs. B.—But, General, I can't get a permit to buy sugar by coffee, or clothes for my children unless I have taken the oath.

Gen.—I can't help it.

Mrs. B. (shoulding tears)—General, I am a widow.

Gen.—Why, you told me your husband was in the Southern army, and I am informed you were the instrument of sending him there!

Mrs. B.—True, General, I had a husband who is now in the Southern army, but I desire to take the oath, and renounce him forever, and be a widow. I have no earthly use for rebels.

Gen.—I have no right to grant you a divorce, and until you are legitimately divorced, you should go to Dixie and share Southern rights with your husband. Orderly, conduct this woman to the door.

Orderly to Mr. C.—You are charged with giving aid and comfort to the Southern rebels, and furnishing information from the United States authorities, and with other things.

Mr. C.—General, I never was anything but a good Union man in my life. I have taken the oath. General, can't you release me?"

Gen.—No, sir, from the proof against you. I will find the power I hang you. You will go to jail and remain there until we can have a court-martial. Guard, take the man to jail.

EASTERN NEWS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The Tribune's Washington special dispatch says: A delegation representing the wool growing interest of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and part of Ohio, are here for the purpose of consulting the different Committees and asking an increase of duty on foreign wools, especially those of finer texture than Cape of Good Hope, Australia and Mexico. The duty on these wools are at present so light that it is impossible for American wool growers to compete with them in the market. The tariff asked is ten cents per pound on these wools. The representations of the delegation have been favorably received thus far.

The Montana, from Port Royal February 9th, and Charleston bar February 10th, has arrived.

A blockade runner grounded during a fog on the 7th instant, and was destroyed by our fleet and the batteries in Charleston harbor.

An expedition left Port Royal, February 5th, under General Truman Seymour, consisting of three brigades and one light battery. They landed at Jacksonville (Fla.), without any casualty. It is reported that the expedition will push on to Tallahassee.

Gilmore and staff sailed, February 8th, for Port Royal, preparatory to some expedition.

The British war steamer Petrel, with dispatches to the rebel Secretary of State, arrived off Charleston bar, February 5th, and requested permission to communicate with the British Consul at Savannah, which Duport (Dahlgren?) refused.

The Savannah Republican gives a gloomy account of rebel affairs. It is stated that only one month's supply of subsistance was in possession of the Commissary Department.

Admiral Dahlgren, with the Pawnee, Wyoming and Wissahickon had sailed for St. John (Fla.)

The Times' Hilton Head letter states that the rebel blockade runner of Charleston had a cargo of iron plates and other material for the construction of iron-clads. She carried four guns. The rebels have been unable to relieve any of the cargo in consequence of the heavy fire of our guns.

The Star says Beauregard's headquarters have been removed, in anticipation of an attack. One hundred and fifty torpedoes are afloat in the Savannah river. Eight thousand troops are quartered round the city. The Georgia regiments have already mutinied in consequence of short supplies. Two blockade runners cleared at Savannah watching in opportunity to pass our gunboats.

The World's letter has a report that 4,000 troops had landed on James Island, near Charleston, in the rear of the rebel batteries.

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—A correspondent of the Herald, writing from off Charleston, February 2d, describes the destruction of the blockade runner as follows:

Early this morning, some daring Englishman made a bold attempt during a fog to run the blockade. They succeeded in getting as far as the mouth of the harbor, when they run before trying to avoid the fleet from our batteries, which were flying in every direction. The fog soon cleared. Wagner and Gregg, aided by two Monitors, immediately commenced shelling her. She was a comple wreck. A 240-pounder Parrott shot from Wagner cut her nearly in two. Besides this shelling, Charleston, James Island and Forts Johnson and Moultrie have received a tremendous cannonading."

The same correspondent, writing under date of February 3d, says: "The rebels have twice severely to reinforce the almost exhausted garrison in the ruins of Sumter, but failed. It cannot be done by daylight, as our guns have full range of the harbor. At night, glorious lights are kept lighted, and bear not only on Sumter, but on the harbor and city, so that it is impossible for a steamer or boat to approach the ruins. The small remnant of the garrison is treated every ten or fifteen minutes to a heavy Parrott shell, from sunset to daylight. Most of the men in Sumter are negroes. The day before yesterday, being rainy and drizzly, one of the rebel ram with a torpedo boat—a cigar-shaped infernal machine—left Fort Pleasant and proceeded down the creek in the rear of Sullivan Island, for the purpose of coming out to make an attempt to destroy our gunboats Housatonic and Nyack, on guard at New Inlet. When they had got ready to make a dash out of the Inlet, it was found that the machine was in sinking condition. She then turned back into the Inlet, where she now lies sunk. This mishap put an end to the attempt to destroy our vessels. This is the third infernal machine that has been destroyed. In Charleston all civil law is at an end. Military rule has full away over the civil authority. They are becoming desperate, and every means to their power will be resorted to to force the blockade. They must have assistance or starve. Deserters report that the city has been badly damaged by Gillmore's constant bombardment, which is still going on. It is calculated that a shell is sent into the city every ten minutes."

MEMPHIS, Feb. 12.—Deserters from the rebel army in Louisiana are coming in daily. They report that the country is in a state of terrible disorganization. The rebels are impressing all males under sixty and over fifteen, besides robbing the people of what necessaries they have. Nothing is plenty but corn bread, even this commands fabulous prices. Union sentiment prevails in some quarters. Delegations of energetic men are coming in, begging arms for resistance, and to organize home guards for the maintenance of their rights and reorganization in the United States.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Knoxville dispatches of February 2d have been received. They give no definite account of affairs. There were cavalry skirmishes in front every day, but they amounted to nothing.

Vicksburg advices of February 3d confirm the rebel statements of the advance of our forces from that point—the 16th and 17th Army Corps.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—There seems to be no difference of opinion among Senators that the recent election of Scanton by the Kansas Legislature was premature and therefore invalid. A resolution will shortly be introduced in the Senate defining the constitutional provision with reference to such election.

The Senate to-day considered the bill for the payment of negro soldiers. After much debate it was determined that they should receive the same pay as white soldiers from January 1st of the present year.

An amendment offered by Cowan of Pennsylvania, putting all colored soldiers in the service on the same pay as white soldiers for all the time they have been in the service, was rejected.

The proposition to amend the Constitution, as reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday, is as follows:

Resolved by Congress, two-thirds of both Houses concurring, That the following Article be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by three-quarters of said legislatures, shall be valid as part of the Constitution: Article thirteenth, section first—neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction. Section second—Congress shall have power to enforce this Article by appropriate legislation.

The Committee of Ways and Means of the House hope to report the Tax Bill on Monday. They recommend acquiescence in the Senate's refusal to adopt the proposition for taxing the stock of liquors on hand. It is thought probable, however, that the bill will insist on the original tax upon the stock on hand and ask for a Committee of Conference to settle the difference.

THE EXECUTIONS IN IDAHO.—The Salt Lake Vedette of February 5th has the following in reference to the late action of Vigilance Committee in Idaho Territory:

The five men hung at Virginia City were in a house, mountain boxes, and when the ropes were adjusted the boxes were withdrawn, and they dangled to their fate. Thirty of the Committee, on the Express left, started for Deer Lodge in pursuit of four others, said to be there. For a long time the roads have been rendered unsafe in consequence of the highwaymen ranging the country, and the Committee was the only resort of a bullied, robbed, murdered community. Harry Plummer was arrested by the Vigilantes, and in his possession was found a paper giving a list of the whole band and a record of their proceedings. Then it was some eighty-five on the list, thirteen having been hung or killed, and the Committee is in pursuit of the remaining seventy. Plummer, when he was executed, denied like a child and begged for life. Jack Gallagher, who is well known in this community, protested his innocence, and there are many who believe him. Most if not all the culprits were avowed Secessionists, and in their chivalric flags, "bloody rebels." Boon Helm, one of the worst of the clan, was hilarious and boisterous just before the execution, and as his swung off hurrahed for Jeff Davis in the most approved rebel style. When the Committee attempted to arrest Spanish Frank he fortified himself in a cabin and killed one man, George Ormsby, and wounded another. The Committee then brought a small howitzer to bear on the cabin, blew the top off, killed Frank, and then offered everything him on the ruins, set fire to the whole concern."

SANITARY FUND RECEIPTS.—From citizens at the Dalles, forwarded by Rev. T. Condon, $17 25 in coin, $17 in currency.

MASON TOBACCO —We were yesterday shown a fine article of tobacco, put up by Mr J F Yeat, of Marion county, which promises, with age, to become a prominent place in our tobacco market. The tobacco is manufactured under Natural Leaf" is the name of the article before us and the manufacturer is putting up evinces creditable skill in every part of Mr Yeat This leaf was raised on Dr Prettyman's place, about three miles from the city It can be laid down in market for 30 cts per pound, and the land, properly cultivated, will bring a higher price than wheat, potatoes, or any other field crop Two acres on Sauvie's Island, but cultivated, yielded 3,000 pounds last year Mr. Yeat acquired his knowledge of the business at Lynchburg, Va, and contemplates going into the regular trade of putting up tobacco

PRIVATE BOYS —There was another scene in the public school room in this city yesterday that should make parents tremble for the safety of their children A boy was under punishment for bad behavior, when he suddenly drew a pistol and leveled it at the head of the teacher He was prevented from firing it, and afterwards received a merited punishment from his father. This city is fast becoming noted for its desperate boys, and the end will sooner or later be felt by parents who are to blame for their reckless conduct

FIRE ENGINE —The press room of the Oregonian establishment is often crowded with visitors, to witness the working of our steam engine, which is now in perfect running order, and by the use of which our Press nearly turns off twelve hundred sheets per hour. We find it a great improvement in business, and in fact could not do without it. In addition to the DAILY, which is printed six times a week, we have two forms of the WEEKLY, and a supplement with the Pacific Christian Advocate and other work which occupies the greater portion of every day An invitation is extended to all who desire to see the machinery in motion to call at the office

FREE FROM TAXES.—Thirty six acres of land, a portion of some part of the Willamette valley, were taken possession of by the Collector of Internal Revenue yesterday, for the arrival of the steamer Senator from San Francisco. It not appearing that the owners or Producers and Dealers in the property should remember that it is their duty to make the returns of the revenue required by law

THE NEWS YESTERDAY, was not intended to excite in this vicinity the gold fever, for very few people would shrug their shoulders and draw their overcoats closer about them on mention of Blue Mountains or Salmon River We apprehend it was a little cold yesterday for the health of the thermometer and feel that sundry bushels of wheat were "nipped in the bud" by the pranks of Jack Frost

SHIPPING HORSES.—Nearly 200 head of horses and cattle were waiting shipment to San Francisco yesterday, from this city. A number from Polk county was among the lot O S N Co are doing their best to furnish sufficient means of transit, having taken up the Carrie Ladd as a barge, capable of carrying 150 head at a trip, besides a large number on the Julia

VISIT TO MONTICELLO —The steamer Cowlitz left Monticello at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, arriving at her dock in this city at 2 p m She brought 60 boxes apples and a number of passengers. A large scow was towed to Helens.

THE STEAMER Rescue, Captain G W Weeks, will take on her first regular trip to Monticello, on the Cowlitz river, leaving this port at 7 o'clock Her dock in this city is at Ash street wharf, from which she will leave on Tuesdays and Fridays, hereafter.

DISASTER TO THE RIVAL.—An accident occurred to the Rival on Wednesday, as she was coming down Oregon City, by which her boiler was broken, and thus disabled she is now laid up The Senator brought the greater portion of her freight.

REVIVING.—A gentleman just from Auburn informs us that the mining excitement has so long pervaded that camp will soon vanish The canal is completed, and preparations are being made for considerable hydraulic work

TAXES LEVIED.—It was yesterday ordered by an assessment upon the shares of stock in the Daly and Columbia Mining Companies, for the purpose of commencing work

A NEW MILL —Portland capitalists have ordered a quartz mill from California, which is decided to be put in operation in some locality among the South Boise lodes, for the purpose of general crushing

LOWER COLUMBIA —River Captains report that yesterday was the most unpleasant day on the Columbia for many months. The wind was very low and cold, and blew a perfect gale with occasional squalls of rain

THE FRUIT TREES —We notice that the trees on the Pritchard block, lately purchased for the location of the new Court House, are being sold and taken away pretty freely at from $2 50 each

BAKER EXPECTED —The steamer John H leaves at 7 o'clock this morning for Lewiston. She may be expected to return to-morrow evening with the bark Helen W Almy

SERVED HIM RIGHT —A sympathizing tory went up the other day to condole with a lot of deserters in jail To show his extreme friendliness he made this observation

"Well, my Democratic friends, it seems that you have made the subjects of Abolition arbitrary to you"

A voice deserter replied as follows

"It makes no difference whether you call us Democrats or What not. One thing I know, I wouldn't have been in this d—d hole if it hadn't been for those infernal Copperheads like yourself I was all right in the army until those devils induced me to desert I have dishonored myself by listening to these villains"

The Copperhead who went on a mission of condolence turned on his heel and left It was noticed at the same time that he snook his head as though in enormous fish had commenced operating on a large scale in both ears —Easton Exchange

DECISION IN A TELEGRAPH CASE —In the case of Mason vs Barry, which was tried at the recent session of the court in Ventinge county, Pennsylvania Judge Campbell presiding, it was decided that the owner or operator of a telegraph line is not bound to send a dispatch which is immediately untrue The history of the case is briefly this Shortly after the election of 1862, W W Mason wished to send a dispatch over Barry's telegraph line asserting that Lincoln had gained Democratic Barry knew this to be untrue, and refused to allow his operator to send the message although a legal tender payment had been offered Mason, therefore brought an action against Barry for damages A verdict was rendered for the defendant by deciding that a telegraph line is not bound to send a dispatch which contains an untruth

Don't you believe the Lord is on our side?" said a strong rebel to a not over-consistent Yankee some time since "Don't you think now, the Lord's on our side?" Well, yes," responded the other "yes, but He's a leetle mighty strange about it, mighty strange"

Who's Ready!

God help us! Who's ready? There's danger before!
Who's armed and who's mounted? the foe's at the door!
The smoke of his cannon hangs black on the plain;
His shouts ring exultant while coursing our skein;
And Northward and Northward he presses his line—
Who's ready? O forward!—for yours said for mine!

No halting, no dreaming, the moments are Fates;
To change or to glory, they open the grave;
There's all we hold dearest to-day we may win;
The web of the future to-day we must spin;
And bid the hours follow with knell or with chime—
Who's ready? O forward—while yet there is time.

Lead armies or councils—be soldier a-field—
Alike, as you rally in liberty's shield!
Alike, as you strike when the bugle-notes call,
For country, for freedom, for Freedom to all!
The blows of the boldest will carry the day—
Who's ready? O forward!—there's death in delay!

Earth's noblest are praying at home and o'er sea,
"God keep the great nation united and free!"
Her tyrants watch, eager to leap at our life
If once we should falter or faint in the strife;
Our trust is unbroken, though legions assail—
Who's ready? O forward!—and Right shall prevail!

Who's ready? "All ready!" undaunted we cry:
"For Country, for Freedom, we'll fight till we die!
No traitor at midnight shall pierce us in rest;
No sleep, as to-day, shall sink us at least;
The God of our Fathers is guiding the van—
All forward! we're ready, and conquer we will!"

The Serpent's Den.

In the year 1792, a man by the name of Job Slocum, together with his family, consisting of a wife and two sons, settled in the north-western portion of Virginia. His rough cabin was built upon the banks of a beautiful and romantic stream, that, after meandering in the valleys and through the dense forests, at length emptied its waters into the Ohio.

One day, in the spring of 1799, Job's two sons, Jesse and Thomas, in company with several other of the neighboring settlers, had made up a hunting party, intending to be gone some days. They took up their line of march into a dense piece of woods to the northward, and after making their exit from this, commenced the ascent of a steep and rocky declivity. They had reached about half-way up, when all at once the foremost of them started back with surprise and horror, as the well-known sound of the rattlesnake fell upon their ears. Immediately following the alarm they beheld numbers of those venomous reptiles directly in their path, some of them of large size, and all having their heads raised and thrown back in a threatening manner. But the early pioneers were men not easily ...ttened by such a foe, and our heroes, ...ursing good hickory cudgels, pressed ... to the encounter.

As they approached, the serpents—which, while the party had been cutting their staves, had become passive—again roused up and as... the defensive, darting out their tongues ...ing their rattles fiercely in defiance. ...e now commenced in real earnest— ... striking in great anger at the men, ...y in turn avoiding the danger of being ...and showering desperate blows upon ...ies. ...o!, lads—there's the ugly varmints, ... we'll have them all around in the shake ... buck's tail!" cried old Job, turning in the direction from which the ominous warning had come.

...a few moments, by Job's order, two ...dy fellows were clearing away the entan... growth of bushes; and after working ...d for half an hour, they succeeded in solving the mystery, in the discovery of the hiding place of the reptiles.

It was an irregular cavern, or rather natural pit, whose sides were almost perpendicular, and about thirteen or fourteen feet deep. On the western edge of this natural well, a large tree had been growing, and had fallen across the top in such a manner that the roots resting on one side and the branches on the other, it formed a complete bridge across. The bottom of the pit was literally swarming with the loathsome serpents, which no sooner perceived the hunters than they set up a hideous noise, rattling and hissing violently.

The only chance to retreat was through an opening in the side some twenty feet below the ground; and in order that none of the reptiles should escape through this, the hunters, obtaining water from a neighboring spring, make a thick paste from a quantity of rich mould lying about, and dropping it down, rammed it very tightly in the opening, thus plugging it entirely up.

And now the slaughter commenced. A volley that did much execution was fired down into the midst of the serpents, which redoubled their previous angry manifestations. Round upon round was hurled upon the entrapped rattlesnakes, which finding no way of getting out of their fatal confinement, moved round and round their prison with astonishing celerity.

Jesse Slocum, Job's eldest son, at last becoming tired of firing, seized his ready constructed lance, and dropping midway out upon the trunk of the fallen tree, commenced to drive the sharp edge of the plane iron at the bodies and heads of the writhing, wriggling snakes, which now presented a horrid appearance. Covered with their own blood, the ferocious reptiles, leaping and almost flying around their den, rendering the sides thereof, to the height of six or eight feet, red and gory.

For some time Jesse Slocum occupied his position, dealing death below; when one of his companions, noticing a peculiar swaying motion of the tree, called to him to come off at once, or there might be an accident. At this he burst into a hearty laugh, and renewed his work, exclaiming:

"If you'll only hush up, I'll have some nice rattlesnake pie ready for you in a very little while."

As he finished, this remark, a huge serpent arose from the almost seething mass directly under him; on perceiving which, he raised his weapon as high as possible, and taking a true aim, delivered a terrible blow directly upon the reptile's neck. But even as he did so, the farther end of the tree split, and sunk with a harsh, scraping noise, about half way down the side of the horrid well, where, resting for a moment, it fell with a dull thump to the bottom.

Jesse, was a powerfully built man, and, when he saw his danger, he had like lightning managed to turn himself completely round and clasp the trunk with both hands as the tree fell—the roots of which still held, however—the shock caused him to slip from the upper to the under side, so that he was now compelled to support his own weight in that perilous position. Neither could he move, for should he attempt to recover himself he would inevitably fall into the reeking, loathsome mass beneath, where he would have become the victim of those rattlesnakes which had as yet escaped their doom. Many of the venomous reptiles would now and then strike at Jesse, or else at his cap, that had dropped from his head among them. Finding himself fast giving out, he called out in a husky, choking voice to one of his companions:

"Shoot me—shoot me, Bill, for heaven's sake! You can't save me, and so don't let me fall in alive!"

The father, who till this moment seemed rooted to the ground with his son's danger, as the tones of the fearful entreaty fell upon his ear, started, and turning to those around him, inquired in a cool, firm tone, "Have any of you any thongs?"

"Here's some," cried several in a breath, grasping them quickly he turned to Jesse, exclaiming in an encouraging tone:

"Hold on a little longer, lad, and I'll save you."

Then, seizing a tomahawk from one of the group, Job Slocum hastened along the tree to where his son's arms clutched the trunk. Drawing his stout knife, he placed the point in a crack, and with a blow or so with the hatchet, drove it up to the hilt in the wood. Doubling one of the thongs, he looped it round the primitive staple, and whirling the two loose ends under Jesse's body, caught them, and drawing the thong tightly up, knotted it about the handle of the knife. Creeping further along, he secured, in a similar manner, the uncles of his son; and then facing about, took hold of his feet and held them firmly, while the imperilled man exerted his own strength to regain his former position. It was exceedingly difficult to do this, but he at last succeeded.

As soon as the desired object was accomplished, Job severed the thong which bound his sons' ankles, and then at an imminent risk to himself, crept over his prostrate body, cut the cord around his shoulders, and regained the edge of the pit.

Carefully, very carefully, did Jesse Slocum follow his father. When he came within reach, every hand was extended, and he was almost lifted to a sure footing on terra firma. An exultant shout of joy now rang through the silent forest, at the almost miraculous escape. It was believed, after a few more rounds were fired, that all the reptiles were killed. As to the exact number destroyed, the hunters could form no just estimate, but all agreed that there were at least from four to six hundred. Doubtless this secluded pit had been for years their breeding place, as many of them were of enormous size.

JIM LANE ON CONGRESSIONAL CHAPLAINS.—A correspondent of a Western paper reports that Senator Jim Lane was seriously exercised at the failure of the House to elect Stockton. He was a good old man, he said—a pure, saintly old man, "and besides, sir, he repeats the Lord's prayer every morning, and before the end of this Congress he would have kept it up till some of these members had learned it!"

How to get rid of an organ-grinder: Call everybody in the house to hear the music, smile, applaud, and ask for more. When the performance is ended, you can send out and thank the artist. He won't trouble you often. So a London man says, who has tried it.

A person in public company, accusing the Irish nation with being the most unpolished in the world, was mildly answered by an Irish gentleman, "that it ought to be otherwise, for the Irish met with hard rubs enough to polish any nation upon earth."

A debtor severely questioned as to the reason of his not paying a just debt, replied, "Solomon was a very wise man, and Sampson a very strong one, but neither of 'em could pay their debts without money."

I have heard a woman of the world say, "The state of widowhood is inconvenient; for one must assume all the modesty of a young girl, without being able to feign her ignorance."
